INVESTIGATION TO BE MADE OF EXPLOSION AT THE APOLLO MINE

Joseph Greenlee Dies and Both Mine Department and Coroner Start Work

BOX FOR POWDER MISSING

Such is Report That Has Won Some Attention—Mine Inspector Harry Phythyon Makes Inspection—Greenlee's Body Brought Home

Official investigation will be made in the powder explosion of Monday morning at the Apollo mine of the Pittsburg Coal company at Fayette City which ended in tragedy. Of the two young men who were worst burned in the explosion and removed hurriedly to the Mercy hospital at Pittsburg, Joseph Greenlee is already dead and Charles Dolan is in critical condition. Others who were burned more or less in the explosion are still suffering from their burns.

Mine Inspector Harry Phythyon of the twenty-seventh bituminous district, with headquarters at Belle Vernon started his work of investigation Monday to ascertain causes, then upon the death of Greenlee Monday evening the coronial department of Fayette county got into action.

It is now being hinted that negligence might have been at the bottom of the whole affair. It has been the custom to haul the small tins of powder into the Apollo mine in a wooden box, which was placed in a car Monday morning as it appears when the trip was started. the powder cans were placed in steel car, but the wooden box was missing. Had it been there the disaster would never have occurred, according to the belief and theory of certain ones who are interesting themselves in the affair. Explanation to the absence of the box is given by the fact that the mine was idle Saturday and that the car containing it was pushed around until it was practically lost. In the rush of entering the mine on time Monday its absence was not noticed, the officials taking it forgranted it was there and consequently overlooking.

"I do not know what will be done," Inspector Phythyon said. "Of course it will depend to some extent upon the result of the coroners inquest for I presume there will be one."

Greenlee died in Allegheny county so the Allegheny county authorities will have to give the matter attention and formally turn over the case to Fayette county for the attention of Coroner S. H. Baum. The death of Greenlee is sufficient cause for a jury to be sworn in. Deputy Coroner John J. Crowley is in charge at Fayette City.

Greenlee is survived by two brothers in Fayette City and five sisters, two of whom live in Fayette City. He was a well known young man 19 years of age. His body was brought home during Monday night.

The death of Greenlee and the injury of the more than a score of others will place the case under the recently effective compensation law. The Pittsburg Coal company, owners of the mine, handle their own insurance under a separate arrangement with the state.

At the hospital reports were this morning that Dolan was resting easy. His burns are such though that the worst is feared.

WRITES TO PROF. DANIEL

The warmest sort of compliment is paid by Paul E. Beck, state supervisor of music and drawing, to Prof. J. T. Daniel, music supervisor of in the schools, and pupils of the Junior high school for their exceptionally good papers in the examinations in music. In a letter to Prof. Daniel that was an answer to a letter Prof. Beck says:

"Please express to the authors of the superb examinations papers my extreme gratification at the excellence of their work.

"Not only in points of neatness and beauty of appearance have they impressed me, but in every marked degree by the soundness of theory and the common sense approach to their subject matter.

WHOLESALE BURGLARY OCCURS AT MONESSEN

Charles Freeman, Theatrical Man, Returns From New Castle to Find Wagonload of Household Goods Had Been Stolen From His Home

When Charles Freeman, former owner of the Luna theatre at Monessen returned after a month's absence at New Castle, where he purchased a theatre he found his Monessen home had been entered and practically a wagon load of valuables stolen. The loss totals about $1,500.

Freeman secured a theatre in New Castle and entered business there, his family following shortly after he had arrived there. Intending to prepare the household goods for removal Mr. Freeman returned Monday and went directly to his home. Previous to the departure of his family it had been locked securely as they thought. Upon opening thedoors he at once discovered the evidence of a wholesale robbery. Entrance had been made over a transom and it seemed practically everything moveable excepting the furniture and carpets taken. A grafanola was missing with silver and cut glass ware and clothing, among other things. Three suits of clothes belonging to Mr. Freeman were not to be found. In one or two cases drawers had been removed from bureaus and dressers and carried away with their contents.

No clues have been found to the burglars. People living nearby had heard nothing so it is supposed the wholesale burglary had been successfully carried on through several visitations. Mud tracks showed around the porches and in the rooms, but they afforded no working basis for the police who were summoned to the scene.

Mr. Freeman is contemplating offering a reward for the capture of the thieves.

GREAT BOXING SHOW THE COMING MONDAY

Jim Perry, Battling Pittsburg, With Great Victories to His Credit Will Meet Bull Miller of Monessen—Buck Crouse to Accompany Him.

Jim Perry the Pittsburg globe-trotting welterweight, will make his first appearance in a western Pennsylvania ring in several months next Monday night when he will feature the main bout of a boxing show scheduled for the Charleroi rink. He will box Bull Miller of Monessen, who of late has been showing unusual class. The bout was arranged following Miller's defeat of Battling Frascatore of Donora last Saturday night. Perry is a man who has to his credit victories over Joe Chip of New Castle and Jack Dillon, two of Pennsylvania's best.

In the semi-final next Monday Battling Sherbine of McKeesport will box Eddie Gray of Steubenville. Probably as one of the events Johnny Todd of Donora and Joe Laurie of Charleroi will meet.

What promises to lend unusual interest to the show is that Buck Crouse the famous Pittsburg pugilist will be in Perry's corner.

WALTER VAUGHN TO APPEAR IN RECITAL AT FAYETTE CITY

Walter Vaughn, the well known tenor of the Monongahela valley who has gained fame in his musical work in Cincinnati and New York city, will give a recital on Thursday evening of this week at the M. E. church Fayette City. He will be assisted by Miss Elizabeth Spalter, reader and Miss Bertha Easter, pianist. A number of Charleroi friends of Mr. Vaughn are contemplating attending the recital.

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR CROSS-COUNTY LINE

Interest Being Revived in Plan of Building Railroad to Connect Washington and Wellsburg—Other Reports Circulated.

Discussing the rumor of the proposed construction of a new railroad through Washington county to Wellsburg, W. Va., the Washington Observer publishes the following:

Interest is being revived in the several times proposed railroad from Wellsburg, W. Va., traversing Washington county and joining the Monongahela & Washington branch of the Pennsylvania railroad at Marianna.

The appearance of surveying corps in the Taylorstown section, who are making plans of the route of this proposed railroad has caused the renewal of interest. The surveyors have been at work in the Buffalo creek valley for the past few weeks.

While no definite information is available on the matter, it is persistently rumored that the Pennsylvania and Lake Erie railroads are jointly interested in the project. Such a line would facilitate the heavy traffic in coal to the lake regions over the tracks of the Lake Erie from the Monongahela valley.

Officials of the Lake Erie a few years ago denied emphatically that that company was in any way connected with the proposed new railroad but despite this fact many believe the rumor to be true.

The route of the railroad would be from Wellsburg up Buffalo creek to Dunsfort, Acheson and near Taylorstown crossing the divide between the shedwaters of the Buffalo and Ten Mile creeks at the Cracraft farm in South Franklin township.

The road would then traverse South Franklin and Morris townships to Hackney and from the latter point following the Ten Mile valley to Marianna where it would connect with the Monongahela & Washington and also the Chartiers Southern branch, when the latter is completed.

Reports are current now to the effect that a new mine is to be opened at a point along the Chartiers Southern and as soon as this company completes plans and starts work that the laying of track on the Chartiers Southern grade will be rushed.

LANGELOTH LICENSE APPLICANT WITHDRAWS HIS APPLICATION

Smith Township to be Without Liquor Another Year From Evidences Now Showing Up.

C. Linn Colbert, who had filed an application for a retail liquor license in Smith township at what is known as Eastonville near Langeloth.

Since the filing of this application there had been started a strong movement to fight it if it came before the court. One of the strong factors against it was the remonstrance made by the American Zinc & Chemical Co., the employer of several hundred men and the location of which plant was the means of building up of a large section of Smith township.

No licensed house has ever been in that section. There has been applications from Burgettstown which is in that community but no license was ever granted. Many believe that had the application of Mr. Colbert come before the court his petition would have been refused.

Committee to Secure Contributions for Jews Abroad Arranges Plans

WILL DISTRIBUTE ENVELOPES

Systematic plans are being worked out by the Charleroi committee for taking contributions Thursday for the relief of Jews in war-stricken countries of Europe. The entire town will be thoroughly canvassed, either by members of the committee or children. The members of the committee are as follows: N. Greenberg, J. D. Berryman, I. Birkin, W. C. Clark, L. Rosenbloom, J. Teitelbaum and J. R. Schafer. One change was made, the name of W. C. Clark being substituted for Hugh E. Fergus.

President Wilson and Governor Brumbaugh have both asked that Thursday be set aside as donation day and the committee in charge will on this day make their visit to all business houses. Wednesday afternoon envelopes will be left at residences all over Charleroi in which requests will be made for contributions to the worthy cause. Contributions will be asked to place their constructions in the envelope and have them ready for the boy or girl who will call to collect them on Thursday afternoon.

A subscription list has been opened at the Charleroi Mail office for those who desire to contribute without being asked.

Sudden Changes Destroying Fruit and Vegetables by The Wholesale

FRUIT GROWERS ARE ANXIOUS

Fear Early Sprouting of Trees And Later Frosting of Fruit, Which Is Tendency in Open Winter—Many Apples and Potatoes Lost.

Sudden changes and generally unseasonable weather may have a detrimental effect on the coming spring summer and fall crops of fruit and grain. Certainly it has already has had a disastrous effect upon certain kinds of produce, notably apples and potatoes in different markets. The sudden changes in temperature last week caused a loss of thousands of dollars to produce dealers who had large stocks on hand in the cities. Local dealers have likewise suffered, while the supply for all western Pennsylvania has been greatly reduced.

As a result of unreasonable temperature in this mid-winter season, some fruit bearing trees have been showing tendencies of sprouting, certain persons tell. In the farming districts farmers are watching for evidences of growth. Nothing will spoil fruit quicker than early unseasonable growth, which later will be discouraged by frost. As a prediction that is as dependable as any growers are anticipating groundhog day, when the groundhog according

NO DODGING POSSIBLE.

A last majority of the liberty-loving, patriotic people of America are for adequate preparedness. Most of them if not all of them were for sufficient preparedness long before President Woodrow Wilson appreciated the popular demand for sufficient strength to evade war, not to invite it.

But now, as a pretense of popularity and his admirers have planned a junket through the country to preach the doctrine to which the President himself is only a recent convert.

The real purpose of President Wilson's proposed tour of the country is to shift campaign issues for the coming Presidential fight. No party lines are possible on the question of national defense. Leaders in both the great political parties are united in favor of ample and adequate preparedness. No leader in any of the parties favors war without sufficient provocation and President Wilson will likely find himself whistling against the wind when he attempts to keep the tariff issue out of the approaching Presidential contest.

The foreign war has brought quite a lot of prosperity to certain interests in this country, but the prosperity is none too certain. Dunn's Review of Trade, accepted as authority, tells an interesting story of general trade conditions in this country since the Democratic near free trade policy was forced upon the people.

In 1912 there were 3,839 failures among the manufacturers. The following year—which witnessed the enactment of the Underwood near free trade tariff—there were 4,243. This, in turn had to yield to the unprecedented figures for 1914, which showed 4,620 American manufacturers pushed to the wall. Yet 1915 has outdistanced this. Last year 5,116 American manufacturing concerns went into bankruptcy.

Mercantile enterprise suffered equally. In 1912, 11,011 American merchants had to close their doors. Along came 1913—with the "new freedom," the Wilson administration and the Democratic tariff—and 11,145 American merchants were forced out of business. In 1914, 12,851 storekepers found themselves unable to maintain their standing during Democratic times; and last year no less than 16,030 American business men found Wilsonism and Underwoodism to be too strong for them.

The tariff cannot be smothered or concealed as the real issue in the next Presidential contest.

$10,000 SAVED TO STATE.

Politics and graft are sometimes regarded as bed-fellows. But this, from the Philadelphia Inquirer, concerning the final report of the Pennsylvania Commission of the Panama-Pacific exposition, is but one of the great majority of cases where it is proven that honesty is still the dominating influence in public affairs:

One of the surprises of modern politics is the fact that the Pennsylvania Commission of the San Francisco fair has turned back into the treasury the substantial sum of $10,000 which was not expended. Considering that the total sum available was not great this is a gratifying situation. Generally on such occasions there is a deficit.

Those who visited the Panama-Pacific exposition are aware of the fact that the Keystone state carried off the honors of the occasion. Its building was not large but was entirely adequate for the purpose. It was well administered and the furniture and paintings have been brought back, so that there is another saving of importance. The Liberty Bell was the center of attraction at the fair, but even before it arrived Pennsylvania's building was thronged with visitors. Some other states made a much more elaborate display without accomplishing so much.

In New York there is a good deal of angry contention over the way the large sum of money was spent with such poor results. In Pennsylvania we are satisfied that we got all that our money could produce.

Warm compliments are extended Prof. I. T. Daniel, supervisor of music in the Charleroi schools by Paul E. Beck, state supervisor of drawing and music for the manner in which the local instructor has carried on his work and for the wonderful results obtained. Prof. Daniel recently submitted a number of music test papers to Prof. Beck, the papers representing the actual work done in examination. The state man considered it rather marvelous that pupils should show such aptitude. This is the praise that counts. It is another evidence of the progress being made. Music instruction is high class, the same that other departments of instruction are high class. We have in Charleroi especial reason for being proud of our schools.

For months and even years there has been considerable spluttering over a railroad line through the central portion of the county to open up a new section and to connect Washington and Wellsburg, W. Va. Similar spluttering might have been heard in Greene county previous to the Thompson failure, for railroad talk in Greene is historical, having been handed down from generation to generation since steam lines became a posibility. Yet the railroad never came; that is it never came in the way dreamed about. It may be so with the Washington county line, proving that rumors are merely rumors. Yet there is an opportunity and no one will realize it and seize upon it any quicker than a progressive railroad.

Prices on all sorts of commodities are advancing rapidly and eternally; chemical compounds that we are beginning to feel necessary are out of sight; rents are jumping; everything that we use or that our neighbors use or that is on the market is selling at an almost unprecedented price. A dollar looks about the size of a dime. Wages are not keeping pace and where they are being advanced it is to the accompaniment of advanced prices for products. The limit has not been reached, but some of these days there will be a halt. Then watch out.

Lucille, a carefully brought up little girl of five years, returned from her first party in glee. "I was a good girl, mamma," she announced, "and talked nice all the time."

"Did you remember to say something pleasant to Mrs. Appleby just before leaving?' her mother asked.

"Oh, yes. I did," was the enthusiastic reply. "I smiled and said: 'I enjoyed myself very much, Mrs. Appleby. I had lots more to eat than I expected.'"

Dr. Osler on Tuberculosis

Sir William Osler, one of the foremost of living medical men, formerly of Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, and now Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford, says in his "Practice of Medicine" (1892), on page 249:

"The healing of pulmonary tuberculosis is shown clinically by the recovery of patients in whose sputa elastic tissue and bacilli have been found. * * * In the granulations products and associated pneumonia a scar tissue is formed, while the smaller caseous nrcus become impregnated with lime salts. To such conditions alone should the term healing be applied."

Many eminent medical authorities have testified to the efficacy of lime salts in the treatment of tuberculosis, and the success of Eckman's Alterative in this and allied throat and bronchial affections may be due partly to the fact that it contains a lime salt so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

Widespread use of this remedy in numerous cases of tuberculosis—many of which appear to have yielded completely to it—justifies our belief that it is worth a trial, unless some other treatment already is succeeding. It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs. We make no promises concerning it more that reputable physicians make promises with their prescriptions, but we know of many cases in which IT HAS HELPED.

HARRISBURG MAN IS NOW HAPPY

I. E. Beckwith Says Wonderful Remedy Gave Him Great Help.

I. E. Beckwith of Harrisburg, Penn., was a victim of disorders of the stomach and intestinal tract. He tried treatment after treatment. Nothing gave him relief.

Then one day he discovered Mayr's Wonderful Remedy—and soon was happy.

Mr. Beckwith wrote to Geo. H. Mayr, the maker of the remedy, and for twenty years the leading druggist of Chicago.

"I believe that Mayr's Wonderful Remedy is the greatest stomach remedy on earth. One dose would convince any one who is troubled with his stomach of its wonderful merits. It removed some of the most awful looking stuff from my stomach. I have taken other remedies, but they never helped me."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.

The Editor's Big Day.

The editor of a Kansas paper says that he picked up a Winchester rifle recently and started up the street to deliver the weapon to its owner. The delinquent subscribers got it into their heads that he was on the warpath, and every one he met insisted on paying all they owed. One man wiped out a debt of ten years' standing. On returning to the office he found a load of hay, fifteen bushels of corn, ten bushels of potatoes, a load of wood and a barrel of turnips.—La Belle Star.

semi-annual

friday---this week

January 28th.

If there is any time that pays people to come to this store, it's when we make our Semi-Annual Remnant Day—the time that every Remnant from Calico, Flannelettes, Dress Goods, to fine Silks—every suit, skirt and waist length takes its final mark-down and moves out—every piece carefully measured — yards and prices plainly marked in Red Ink on each and every item—so much for the piece.

No difference whether they're Remnants — surplus or odd lots—of whatever nature—lowest cost to the finest—Laces or Novelties — ready-to-wear — underwear or outside wear—for women, men, misses and children—China, Silverware, Rugs or Curtains—everything we want sold in every department in the establishment—and there's lots we're determined shall go—all brought out Friday and priced to find a ready buyer on sight—It's the day we make a price—take a loss—and that ends it.

A vigorous and positive selling of all goods as referred to above—from the time the store opens at 8:30 A. M. till it closes at 5:30 P. M.—an all day sale—and every lot sold out, others as good will be brought to the front and sold on the same Red Ink basis.

Might be people who read this and still don't know the importance of this Semi-Annual Remnant Day—because words don't express what's to be done. Those people should ask their townspeople—their neighbors, who have known of Remnant Day for years past—whether or not this is worth coming for. After all—the test of any sale is the people's judgment of it—what they get for their money—and we believe anyone who has come to this establishment on any past Remnant Days—will recommend—enthusiastically—that all who can should come—no matter where you live.

Remember, it's Friday—this week—January 28th.

An Old Proverb

It used to be proverbial that every man (and it is certainly no less true of woman) is either a fool or a physician at forty. This means that every intelligent person must learn so much about caring for his own health that by the time he is forty years of age he can almost be reckoned as a physician.

Why, then, is there so much talk by doctors against "self-medication?" A woman can recognize all ordinary ailments without calling on a doctor. If they are ailments distinctive to her sex she generally knows enough to use that greatest of all remedies for such ailments, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and likewise she is familiar with the standard remedies for other diseases.

agogical handling of the principles involved and very sincerely congratulate you upon your fine work with the pupils.

"I am hoping to be able to come to you some time in Charleroi. Meantime should you have any special music or musical event of unusual importance. I shold be very glad indeed to receive a notice of it or an invitation to be present.

Prof. Daniel submitted 18 test papers prepared by the following seventh and eighth grade pupils:

Margaret Gunderman, Katherine McLuckie, Byron Knoch, Elizabeth Newman, Anna Gezzer, Grace Williamson, Anna Kucera, Kathryn Carroll, Margaret Urabel, Gertrude Lentz, Martha Savenius, Jennie Shesniak, Susie Bodnar, Mary Yaros, Manda Boni, Harold Stech, Mary Goldsmith and Marjorie McCormick.

In the Junior high school test taken by 250 pupils, only seven failed to get a full percentage on papers.

The list of questions included 150 musical definitions compiled by Prof. Daniel and taught in the Junior high school by Miss Francis Corter.

In additional to their usual routine of work in music, the eighth grade pupils are taking up the study of the lives of the leading composers and some of their works. At the present time, the life of Guiseppi Verdi is being studied together with the opera, "Il Trovatore."

A MODERN THETIS

By IZOLA FORRESTER.

Judy was nineteen, Judy of Rest Awhile farm, brown haired, brown eyed, freckled, slender and graceful as a silver birch, with all the obstinacy and pertinacity of the Gregorys concentrated in her general make-up.

Judy ran up the worn cow path to the fringe of birchwood and slipped into it, bound for the sculptor's house. Ever since early summer it had been the house of wonder to her, the place where beauty was a real tangible thing, not a vague idea. First she had been sent with eggs and butter and fresh milk to him. His mother had led Judy down the lane to the studio he had made of an old woodshed. Here she had seen him first, working among his beautiful silent figures and after the first few visits he had asked her to let him use her hands for his statue of "Diana Holding a Young Fawn."

"You have perfect hands, Judith," he told her in his absent-minded, impersonal way. "You must let me make casts of them."

Judy nodded understandingly. She had always admired her hands.

"I like them," she said to him. "I don't think it's wrong to like them myself, do you? The rest of me doesn't match them, you see."

Then Whitney had looked at her for the first time, really looked at her slowly, deliberately, with artistic approval.

"I think you're all right," he had said. "I'd like to use your head for my Thetis. It has all of her elusive challenge."

Judy had never heard of Thetis, but in among the old high school books was an old work on mythology, and here Judy read of the elusive lady and her pursuing, changeable wooer, and it delighted her heart. Wooers should pursue, she believed, and should be given a hard chase, not just come along some day when they felt like it and tell one's mother they were willing to marry you the way Hale Tuttle was doing that very afternoon. It had been such a wonderful summer and autumn posing for Thetis' head and Diana's hands and some Egyptian girl who stood among lotus leaves and fed the sacred crocodiles from her perfect hands. She had forgotten all about Hale and his general intentions which had been made manifest toward her for years. Hale just seemed sort of comical when you measured him up beside the Greek gods and Whitney Dewing.

Judy turned breathlessly into the lane to the little house among the maples and hesitated just for a second. A black roadster stood under the trees, and Mrs. Dewing had the tea table out on the veranda. Judy's quick eye saw Whitney strolling back through the lane from the studio with a tall girl in a long gray cloak.

"Come here, Judy, won't you, and join us?" called Mrs. Dewing. "You have just seen the statues, Alice, but here is the real, live little Thetis. I don't know what Whitney would have done without her."

Judy smiled, with the Gregory pluck even in defeat. And all at once, as she sat there drinking tea with them all, hearing them make plans for the wedding before Christmas—all at once Judy opened her brown eyes wider than usual and announced:

"I'm going to be married, too. Oh, I've been engaged for years, off and on. No, indeed, the same one," blushing at Whitney's rallying teasing. "He's Judge Tuttle's only son, and—and—bravely—"I've always liked him best of anybody."

"Hale Tuttle?" queried Whitney. "Really, Judith? That big, fine-looking chap with the curly hair who superintended the work on the state road over here?"

Judy nodded proudly.

And just then it occurred to her all at once that she had not told Hale yet, that Hale was lingering on back home, waiting for an answer, while she had run away to find the trail of romance, and lo, it only circled around and led back over the cow path through the silver birch wood to Rest Awhile farm, and Hale waiting for her.

"Did you enjoy posing?" Alice asked.

"I did for Thetis," Judy answered happily. "I liked her changing into so many different forms, but she had to be herself at last. I guess we all do. I must hurry back. Hale's waiting for me."

Habit of Promptness.

Once you form a habit of being prompt to meet all your engagements you will find it just as easy to be prompt as to be tardy. Work conscientiously until the habit is formed—and the whole of your life will be the easier for it.

Occasionally, of course, with the best of intentions delays occur that cause us to keep others waiting. It is always a good plan, therefore, when you are going to meet somebody in a strange place to arrange beforehand that if you are detained you will telephone to some point to which the person you are going to meet can telephone—and so you can let each other know what has happened.

IN THE COSSACK COUNTRY

American Traveler Writes of Life as He Saw It Among Primitive Russian Tribes.

I tramped through several hundred miles of Cossack country last summer, and I have a very bright impression of the people. They have a considerable quantity of land. The government pursues a set policy of giving the Cossacks land, space wherein to live well and multiply. The whole of Central Asia and Turkestan is preferably settled by Cossacks. The Russian government trains the men for two or three years and when the time of training has been run through the authorities propose to them that they settle down near the place where they have been encamped. Land will be given them free. They can bring their sweethearts and their wives. The docile Kirghiz and Chinese and other aborigines can be practically forced to build houses for them and dig out irrigation canals and plant poplars and willows. A company of Cossacks accepts the government proposal, and so a new station is marked on the map. A church is built. A horizontal bar and a wooden horse and a greasy pole are put up. A vodka shop is supplied. And that constitutes Cossack civilization. (Now the vodka shops are all closed, and there is talk of reopening them as schools.)

The talk and the songs and the life of the station are all military. The talk is of battles lately and battles long ago, and the battles of the future; the songs are recruiting songs and war songs; the life is ever with the gun on horseback.—Stephen Graham, in the Atlantic.

Framing a Children's Code.

The Missouri children's code commission appointed by Governor Major has organized its work of codifying all children's laws in the state, and of drafting needed new laws to be introduced in the legislature of 1917. Most of the work will be done at the state university through the departments of law, sociology and political science. The entire commission of 21 members has been divided into subcommittees to handle various sections of the comprehensive outline of work, modeled on the general outline sent out by the federal children's bureau. Considerable help is expected from the data the latter is collecting on children's laws throughout the United States. The expenses of the commission will be met by voluntary contributions. Rhodes E. Cave, judge of the St. Louis juvenile court, is chairman, and Prof. Manley O. Hudson, of the state university, secretary.

PRODUCE MEN SUFFER

to the old-fashioned notion emerges from his hole to squint at his shadow if he has any and to either stay out or dodge back into his hole.

A prominent produce man of the Pittsburg district speaking of the destruction of produce by the sudden weather changes said:

"We had prepared for weather at least below freezing and when it jumped from about zero to above 60 degrees of course we were hurt and hurt badly. Potatoes and apples will cause our greatest losses; but we are losing greatly, too, on onions, celery, cabbage and other vegetables. The trouble is this: Potatoes, apples and like products are shipped to us when the weather is around zero. In most instances such products are not injured a great deal if they get slightly frost bitten, provided the weather remains below freezing for we can dispose of the goods to the retail trade which in turn can sell the goods to their customers—the consumers—before the products get soft or begin to decay. Potatoes and apples when slightly frost bitten are not injured much if they are kept cold until ready for consumption. But the weather of Friday and Saturday thawed the frost out of the chilled products so rapidly that they will not keep."

"JANE" CELEBRATED COMEDY ATTRACTION AT COYLE TODAY

Charlotte Greenwood will appear in the title role of "Jane" the celebrated Charles Frohman comedy, which will be shown at the Coyle theatre today. The picture is taken from the stage success of the same name. The play has become one of the historic successes of the theatre its comedy now being counted classic. The advent of the Uncle Andrew in young S hackelton's bachelor hall produces a series of complications that are screamingly funny.
